The interior

With a contemporary yet typical design, the Pomelo villa unfolds volumes which allies comfort with functionality. The living room has a large entrance with a living room and an open kitchen soaked up in natural light. The whole is extended by a covered terrace with a spectacular view on the slate pool and the lagoon of Baie du Cap.

The garden

Responding to the demands of contemporary architecture and indoor-outdoor tropical living, the villa's spaces are totally open and extended by a veranda and a chic private pool that opens onto a majestic, manicured garden. The garden overlooks the village of "Anbalaba" and is composed of multiple varieties of plants on a sparkling ocean background.

The green roof

Anbalaba is committed to an environmental approach: each aspect of the villas has been carefully thought in total respect of the surrounding nature. The green roof of the Pomelo villa harmoniously blends into the landscape and has numerous advantages as it is much more sustainable, promotes the retention of rainwater and produces a thermal and sound insulation around the villa.

The view

Overhanging the lagoon, the Pomelo villas offer a visual spectacle on the turquoise sea. In addition to the sea view, the villa also has a 180-degree panoramic view of the village of Baie du Cap and the neat vegetation that surrounds the property.
